

Paper CITY

OUR PREMIER ISSUE

ATLANTA SEPTEMBER | OCTOBER 2004

STYLE | FASHION | SOCIAL

A Rose by Any Other Name

Social lion and garden enthusiast Amanda Brown Olmstead takes frumpy to fabulous with her new collection of gardening attire, Garden Frou Frou. As a board member of the Atlanta Botanical Garden for 10 years and an avid gardener, Olmstead feels at home in her tangerine jelly clogs with lime-green flora, wide-brimmed straw hats and potting aprons with four roomy pockets for essentials such as pruning shears, water bottles and, of course, cell phones. And, yes, she

Amanda Brown Olmstead

Restaurant Buzz

They've kept us from going hungry for years, and now gourmet grocer Market One (1061 Ponce de Leon Avenue) has created Taste, so you can quell hunger in-house with a casual food and wine bar serving herb-crusted flank steak or the kalamata-and-artichoke tart ... If wine isn't your cup of tea, try the jasmine truffles at Seeger's (111 West Paces Ferry Road) or the dragon-smoked pouisson at Roy's (3475 Piedmont Road), both of which count Teavana teas as ingredients ... Speaking of Roy's, the popular Hawaiian dining spot has imported a new chef: Wade Lowe, promoted from sous chef at Roy's Philadelphia ... We thought eating vegetarian was only trendy in L.A., but then June brought Lush to 913 Bernina Avenue. The Inman Park restaurant and bar is charming everyone with its tropical patio, full bar, seared veggie scallops and herb-infused flatbread with white-bean hummus ... The Forum in Norcross is the place to shop and spa, and now former Bacchanalia chef de cuisine Charles Schwab will add his culinary expertise to the new Grace 17.20. Owner Barbara DiJames, formerly of Blue Ridge Grill, opened this charming California-influenced dining room just in time to enjoy our early-fall nights on the cozy patio ... What's better than stir-fry where you pick the ingredients? Not much. That's why we can't wait for The Real Chow Baby to open in early October at 1016 Howell Mill Road. Owner Mike Blum, formerly of Spice Restaurant and Bones, envisions lots of Chow Baby offspring around town ... The InterContinental Hotel Buckhead-Atlanta, soon to open at 3315 Peachtree Road, plans to bring some serious French fare to the South with famed Au Pied de Cochon, a Paris-based French brasserie owned by Les Freres Blanc ... If you've been searching for chef Richard Blais, he's working his magic at Bazaar (654 Peachtree Street), the intimate,